

Process Management

- The entire state of the process at any instant is contained in its context
- New features can be designed and incorporated into the OS by expanding the context to include any new information needed to support the feature

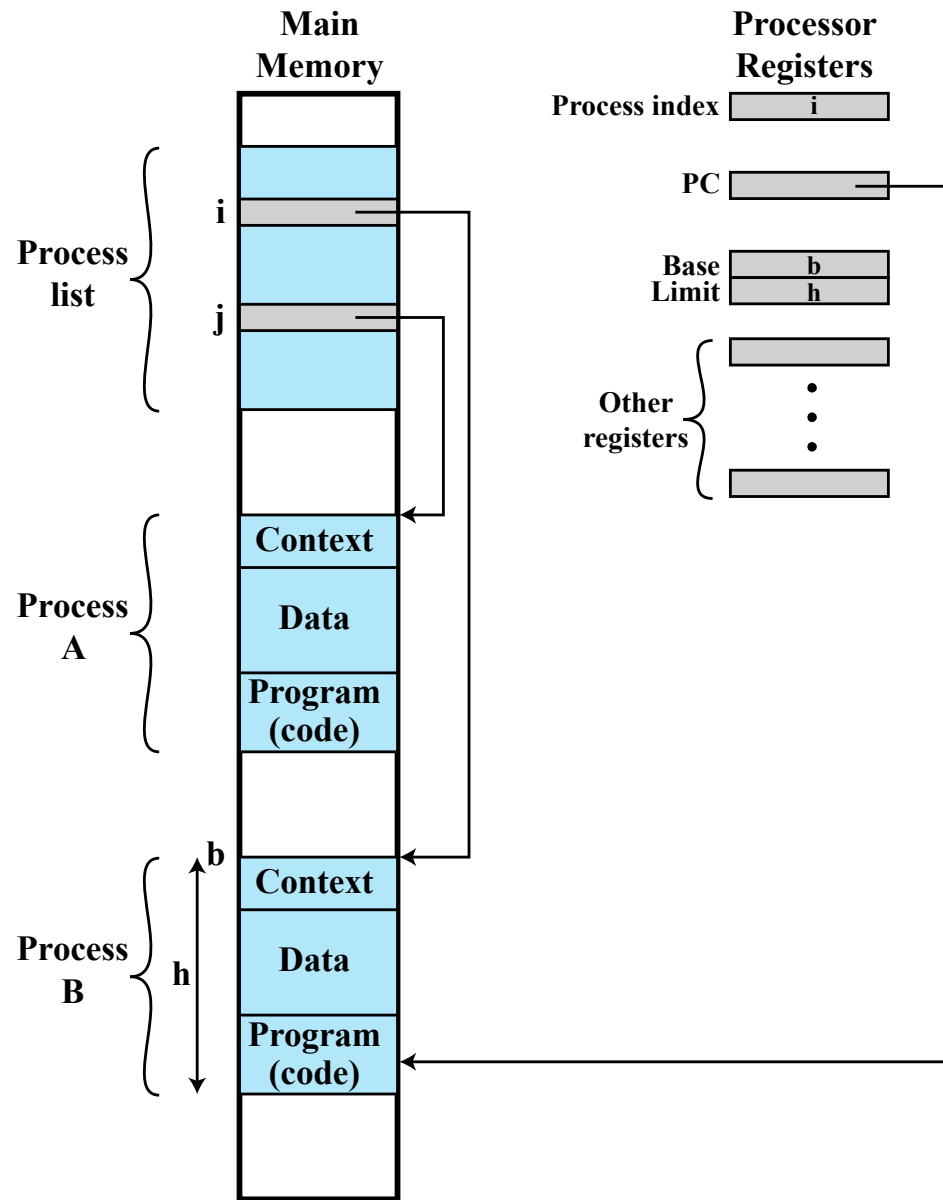

Figure 2.8 Typical Process Implementation