

1950s

The computer age dawns:
A Remington Rand "calculating machine — the first commercially successful computer using punch card technology — was born in the 1950s, and was used by the U.S.
Census Bureau.

Credit: Bettmann/Corbis

