

Microkernel Architecture

Assigns only a few essential functions to the kernel:

- Other OS services are provided by processes run in user mode called servers.
- Servers are customized to specific application or environment.